The Best Download Manager for Windows.Standard Level of Care and Pain Management in the ICU. The objective of this review is to provide a clear standard of care and to identify where further research can be conducted to inform best practice and promote critical care safety. One hundred and thirty-seven ICU nurses from the United States and Canada were surveyed regarding pain management practices and perceptions about the standard of care. A common approach to pain management was identified as having the following goals: to provide medication to patients that can have a positive impact on pain and to provide a standard approach to pain relief. Most nurses (91%) agreed that pain assessments should be performed routinely, and almost half (42%) thought that pain assessments should occur every 30 minutes. Few nurses (2%) performed pain assessments every 4 hours, and 25% performed pain assessments less than every 4 hours.The present invention relates to a semiconductor memory device, more particularly, to a semiconductor memory device that allows setting of refreshing cycle using a fuse circuit. In general, a semiconductor memory device includes a data output buffer. The data output buffer is used to externally output data of a memory cell selected by a word line. The data output buffer includes a sensing amplifier for amplifying data of a memory cell, and a latch, which latches the data output from the sensing amplifier and then outputs the data. In the data output buffer, a memory cell array is refresh-cycled by external control signal in order to maintain data of a memory cell. A semiconductor memory device for example a Dynamic Random Access Memory (DRAM) for preventing soft error by auto refreshing is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 6,298,704 (issued to Hsieh, et al. on Oct. 2, 2001). The '704 patent is hereby incorporated by reference into this disclosure as

User Rating: 4.3. Rescue of gene expression after acquisition of drug resistance to a multi-drug-resistant tumor by transfer of P-glycoprotein. The expression of resistance to a chemotherapeutic agent in tumor cells can be reversed by treatment with MDR reversal agents. Here, we used the human mdr1-carrying K562 leukemia cell line as a model to examine the effect of MDR reversal agents on the reversal of gene expression after acquisition of drug resistance to doxorubicin, an anthracycline antibiotic, and vincristine, a vinca alkaloid. High-level expression of the mdr1 gene is responsible for MDR. Upon treatment of K562/Adr cells with MDR reversal agents, the mdr1 gene expression was fully restored and the re-expression of mdr1 in K562/Adr cells resulted in the restoration of cytotoxicity in the presence of drugs. The re-expression of mdr1 gene expression in K562/Adr cells occurred in a cyclosporin A-dependent manner. When the transcription activator TFIIB of K562 cells was transferred into K562/Adr cells, the re-expression of mdr1 gene expression also occurred by transferring TFIIB. Transfer of a fusion protein between a transcription activator TFIIB and the nuclear localization signal of SV40 T antigen was able to completely restore the mdr1 expression and the cytotoxicity of K562/Adr cells.Q: How do I set up a simple REST API with Express?
